

“It was like a safari, we were looking for wild animals – Jarawa tribals to be specific.”

Don't take risks with Jarawa lives

Don't use

the Andaman Trunk Road

Tourists traveling to Baratang are treating the Jarawa tribe like animals in a safari park.

The road which cuts through the Jarawa's land is illegal – India's Supreme Court ordered it to be closed in 2002. Please don't travel on it.

Tourists risk passing on diseases to which the Jarawa have no immunity. The Jarawa tribe have lived in the Andamans for over 50,000 years, and an epidemic could wipe them out.
